It is often referred to as the "Spanish Civil War novels" because of the plot which involves Rizal's ideas of a bloody and violent insurrection against the Spaniards and the Filipinos' mission to spread the Spanish culture throughout the Philippines. It is considered to be "one of the most memorable novels of the Spanish-American war." It was the first nationalist novel written by Rizal. When Rizal wrote the novel, he was already in exile; also, he died before finishing the manuscript. The novel was inspired by his personal experiences living in the Philippines, as well as the political instability of the country at the time. The title of the novel translates into English as "The filibusterismo" or the "Filibusterism," but in the English translation of the novel, it is the term "Subversive" which is the most appropriate translation of the term "filibusterismo." Plot The novel is composed of six parts: Introduction: A group of Filipino rebels from the Philippine province of Cavite, led by Colonel Catalino Álvarez (who is also the leader of the movement within the Spanish army), gather together to plan an assault to kill Spanish President Mariano Pineda. First Part: After the meeting, a young rebel named Andrés Bonifacio, whose mother is a Catholic, dreams of redeeming their country by rising up against the Spanish leadership. When he finally manages to do so, he goes to Rizal in Manila and tells him about his plan. Bonifacio urges Rizal to write down his ideas so that these can be used by the forces of the Filipinos to launch a rebellion against the Spanish army. Rizal, however, is so
